Pigs

A Musical by Frank Kirwan

Foreword

“...There must have been laughter amidst the apes when the Neanderthaler first appeared on earth. The highly civilized apes swung gracefully from bough to bough; the Neanderthaler was uncouth and bound to earth. The apes, saturated and peaceful, lived in sophisticated playfulness, or caught fleas in philosophical contemplation; the Neanderthaler trampled gloomily through the world, banging around with clubs. The apes looked down on him amusedly from the tree tops and threw nuts at him. Sometimes horror seized them: they ate fruits and tender plants with delicate refinement; the Neanderthaler devoured raw meat, he slaughtered animals and his fellows. He cut down trees which had always stood, moved rocks from their time-hallowed place, transgressed against every law and tradition of the jungle. He was uncouth, cruel, without animal dignity – from the point of view of the highly cultivated apes, a barbaric relapse of history. The last surviving chimpanzees still turn up their noses at the sight of a human being...”

Pigs

By Frank Kirwan

Act One

All the scenes could take place in various areas of the farmyard except Act One, Scene Six, and Act Two, Scene Five, which should take place in Giles' farmhouse. But, while the scenery can remain fairly unchanged, the lighting should reflect the changes of mood as the musical progresses.

News announcer: And the latest on the foot and mouth outbreak is that the army have just commenced digging huge mass graves in Cumbria at the start of a nationwide campaign to kill over a million farm animals. They hope that this will halt the epidemic. Otherwise, the large-scale slaughter of livestock will continue, until all traces of the disease are eradicated. But now back to the really major news today....

Scene One

All the pigs

The scene is a farmyard. Pigs of various shapes and sizes are running around, playing, jumping, while others are relaxing. As Farmer Giles enters all the pigs hit the ground fast and pretend to be asleep. Giles is not the stereotype West Country friendly farmer; he is rough, with a broad northern accent, and overtly aggressive in manner.

Enter Giles

Farmer Giles: Look at this lot. What an ugly, surly, smelly bunch. Dumb animals! (whacks one pig with his stick. The pig squeals loudly) Or sometimes not so dumb (laughs, and whacks another even harder, with great relish). All they're good for is frying, roasting, boiling and eating. Whoa....look at t' meat on this one (whacks Frederick). Mind you, with this batch I'm not so sure. I'll tell you a secret (aside to the audience). You'll need to keep your mouths shut mind! A bunch of smarty scientists paid me good money to feed this lot some special food. What was it it were for? Change their ..er...what were it now? ...trombones, earphones.....oh ay, hormones. Told me they'd come back and test 'em in six months. Easy money! Even better, t'wife knew nothing about it. And don't you lot let on. It's our secret. I tell you what! (whacks another pig) I wish I could make the wife squeal like that! Take that me dear! Get me dinner out now! She's not like this lot, though, she'd bite back! Ay, she would that! I tell you one thing at least. Down here, in this farmyard, I am the king. I am the lord of all that I survey.

Song: Lord of all that I survey (western, as opposed country and western, percussion to include whip, a la "Rawhide".)

Exit Giles

Scene Two: Frederick, Cedric, Blackie, Pinkie, all other pigs

Cedric: I wonder what he was going on about?

Frederick: How should I know? He's human. He's all-powerful. All we need to know is what he wants us to do and we don't have to understand his words to do that. He always makes it pretty clear somehow! He has a knack for expressing himself via the subtlest of actions. (mimics the whip)

Cedric: Well I want to find out more about him.

Frederick: And how, my dear Cedric, are you going to do that and why, pray, are you going to do that? Can't you be like a normal pig and chase flies and soak in the mud all day? That's what normal pigs do!

Cedric: And how many normal pigs are there round here?

Frederick: Well I'm normal.

Cedric: Frederick, you're not normal. You're intelligent. You think.

Frederick: Only when I have to.

Cedric: But you can if you want.

Frederick: I didn't used to be able to and I don't think I do want to now. It really does involve too much mental effort. Too much....stress.

Cedric: But I'm worried. Look at some of the other pigs round here. Over the last few weeks they've been acting really strangely. You don't socialise much, but I do, and I tell you, there's something extremely weird going on. Hey, Pinkie, Blackie, over here!

(Pinkie and Blackie run across). Tell Frederick what you are.

Pinkie: What we are?

Cedric: What sort of pigs you are.

Pinkie: Cedric, if I've told you once, I've told you a thousand times, we are not pigs. (changes to a reverential tone) We are cows.

Frederick: Pinkie, you are not a cow.

Blackie: Oh yes he is.

Pinkie: Oh yes I am.

Frederick: But look at yourselves. You're pigs. You've got trotters, you've got snouts, and you're small and fat.

Cedric: And you don't have udders. (Looks to check). I'd like to see a farmer milk these two!

Pinkie: Cedric, I may not look like a cow, but I am a cow trapped in the body of a pig. I feel like a cow, I think like a cow, and I have desires like a cow.

Blackie: So moo to you, we're off. The problem with this farm is there are too many pigs around here.

Cedric: You're not going to tell me those two aren't ..er...a little out of the ordinary?

Frederick: Well yes, I must say you appear to have a point.

Cedric: And watch this lot. Hey, you lot, come over here, quick! (the sheep pigs run over.) Now what have you lot been doing all day?

Sheep pigs: All day, all day, all day (all in unison in sheep like voices)

Frederick: Oh, you are joking!

Sheep pigs: Joking joking joking! Hee, hee, hee! Baa, baa, baa!

Cedric: No! What...have...you...been....doing?

Sheep pigs: Doing, doing, doing!

Cedric: Oh all right, go on, run away, shoo!

Sheep pigs: Shoo, shoo, shoo!

Cedric: You see, they all think they're sheep.

Frederick: And consequently, unlike the two of us, their intellect has been unquestionably diminished.

Cedric: Precisely.

Frederick: But surely there must be some degree of mental control in this. Look at old Albert over there. I can't see him being silly enough to think he's a cow or a sheep or a hen or whatever.

Cedric: No, you're right, he's much more sensible than that.

Frederick: I should think so too.

Cedric: He thinks he's a horse.

Frederick: I must admit old chap, that this is all, to say the least, somewhat perplexing. But as all young pigs are taught, "When change comes, it always comes for the worse."

Cedric: But why, Frederick, why for the worse? Why believe all the old stories? We could make our lives change and, what's more, we could make them change for the better. Somebody's been doing some strange things to make all this happen to us and our friends, and we can't let them keep doing it, or who knows where the world will end up? If we used these brains we've suddenly been given, if we started to think, if we planned, if we organized, if we motivated, if we....

Frederick: Dreamed?

Cedric: Not dreamed, Frederick. If we believed, if we believed we could do it, we could build a better world for us and for all animals, somewhere....

Frederick: (sarcastically) Somewhere over the rainbow!

Cedric: No,...not exactly,...but ....although we could never reach a rainbow, or feel it, or even touch it., there's no reason why we shouldn't aim for it. And who knows, just by trying to reach our rainbow we might find out all sorts of things about ourselves, good things, positive things, that we didn't know existed. Frederick, we're going to take a step into the unknown. I don't know where we'll end up, but if we can carry the other pigs with us on our journey, somewhere, somehow, believe me, we'll find a rainbow, and that rainbow could be the key to the fulfilment of all our wildest dreams.

Song: Where is the rainbow? (a powerful ballad, sung by Cedric and the chorus). At the end of the song a rainbow, if possible, should briefly come into view and then fade.

Scene Three

All the pigs

It is now later in the day and the pigs are looking out towards the rain. Frederick is trying to get some sleep

Helter: Cedric, why does it always have to rain when there's a rainbow?

Cedric: Eh?

Skelter: Yes, the rainbow's so beautiful but the rain always spoils it.

Helter: Maybe there's a place where it doesn't rain when there's a rainbow.

Skelter: Maybe there's a place where it doesn't rain at all.

Frederick: Skelter!

Skelter: Yes.

Frederick: Shut up!

Helter: But if it didn't rain, there wouldn't be any flowers.

Blackie: Or grass for us cows.

Sheep pigs: Cows, cows, cows. Moo, mooooo1

Frederick: Shut up! I'm trying to get some sleep.

Pinkie: You know, the problem with being able to think is that you start to wonder about all sorts of things that you never even bothered about before.

Blackie: The problem with being able to think is that you suddenly start to wonder if things could be better than they actually are.

Cedric: Correction. You suddenly know that things could be better than they actually are. In some ways they could hardly be worse. And it's not just you. Frederick and I have been talking about changing the way things are.

Pinkie: In what sense?

Cedric: I mean like chasing Giles out of the farm and running things ourselves.

Helter and Skelter: (together) Wow!

Sheep pigs: Wow, wow, wow.....!

Frederick: Sh! Cedric means more than just getting rid of Giles. He has a vision of a world where all animals, not just we pigs, have a fair chance.

Pinkie and Blackie: Hear! Hear!

Cedric: Listen. You lot were talking about the rainbow a few minutes ago. Well...it's like....until just now all our lives all we could see was the rain, and now...well....we can see beyond the rain. We can see a rainbow. It's a sign of something better and I think.... I think we'd better go and find it. We'll have some good times and we'll have some bad times but if we don't go and look for that rainbow now, we'll regret it. Because rainbows don't last long. They disappear, and you always wonder where they've gone.

Frederick: You know, when all's said and done, there is something rather splendid in this thinking thing.

Cedric: There's something splendid about living, about dreaming....

Frederick: There's something splendid about being a pig.

Pinkie and Blackie: Or a cow

Sheep pigs: Or a sheep, or a sheep, or a sheep

Cedric: But of all things, of being a pig.

Song: Pigs (the show's theme song, a huge song and dance number sung by Cedric and Frederick and involving all the pigs)

Cerebrus: Isn't that a human saying, "Pigs might fly"? Well, judging from this little bunch, indeed they might. But enough, let us continue.

Scene Four

All the pigs

Blackie: So what's it all about then Freddie? Why can't we all just have our normal early evening nap?

Frederick: Well I think, Blackers, that things are starting to move somewhat swiftly.

Cedric: They are indeed, Blackie. Tonight you will witness the sudden demise of two of your favourite friends, Giles' lovely puppy dogs.

Frederick: Yes, by the end of tonight, we intend to have those two ugly guard dogs of his under our control.

Helter: What! Those monsters! They'd have you for dinner as soon as look at you!

Skelter: It all seems a bit dangerous to me.

Sheep pigs: Dangerous! Dangerous! Dangerous!.....

Frederick: Sh!

Cedric: Oh, don't worry you lot. Uncle Cedric's got it all nicely under control.

Sheep pigs: No! Dangerous! Dangerous!.....

Frederick: Shut up! Go and sit over there!

Sheep pigs: Over there, over there, over there.

Cedric: Now, as I was saying, everything is under control. All we need is one large net, (produces the net) four large pigs, (pulls out four pigs), and some rather large dog biscuits, skilfully acquired, I may say, by Frederick, on one of his spying missions at the farmhouse. (displays the biscuits) Now, all you lot will have to do, on my signal, is throw the net over the bulldogs. Simple. Got it?

Blackie: But Cedric, those dogs are lethal; Giles has got them trained to kill.

Frederick: Blackie, I can assure you that Cedric's plan is simple and foolproof, and this is our first show of power. We intend to persuade these nasty hounds, by fair means or foul, into helping us bring about their master's downfall.

Skelter: It's too late to argue now you lot. Here they come!

(Enter Bazza and Gazza, two aggressive looking bulldogs. The pigs all pretend to be asleep.)

Bazza: Look at this lot Gaz, docile as a bunch of dodos.

Gazza: Yeah, no sweat. Money for jam controlling these farm animals.

Bazza: Peasants, Gaz, not a patch on us. We're the business, mate.

Gazza: Yeah, not only that, but if it wasn't for us, that old greedy wolf 'd have 'em for dinner in no time. He likes a leg of pork.

Bazza: Oy, speaking of food, is that doggie biscuits I see before my very eyes?

Gazza: Manna from heaven my son, manna from heaven. Let's get stuck in!

(While the bulldogs gobble up the biscuits, the pigs creep up behind them with the net)

One Sheep pig: Dangers.....

(Blackie grabs the Sheeppig, and shuts him up)

Bazza: (half turning round) What the hell was that? Sounded like a sheep.

Gazza: Dunno, mate, don't worry about it, we've got more important things to be dealing with.

Bazza: Too true, there's nothing like a nice biscuit to.....

(The pigs throw the net over the dogs. There is an ensuing scuffle, which the pigs win and Pinkie and Blackie sit on opposite ends of the net, facing the dogs, who sit with their backs to each other under the net.)

Bazza: Oh my good god, Gaz, we've been done up like a kipper.

Gazza: Yeah and I don't much like the look of this lot now. They don't look docile no more. (to Blackie). What lingo do you think they speak? Do .. you .. understand ...me?

Bazza: (to Pinkie) Take....me....to....your.....leader.

Frederick: Of course we understand you, you stupid hounds. And there'll be no more biscuits for you unless you make one or two promises.

Gazza: Listen mate, we bulldogs are a honourable breed. We don't make promises for biscuits.

Bazza: They're pretty big biscuits, Gaz.

Gazza: Well I suppose it depends on the size of the promises.

Cedric: Look, it's quite simple. We want you to help us to get rid of old Giles. We want to run the farm ourselves. We know you're his pets and that, shamefully, a dog is a man's best friend, but....

Bazza: You what! Man's best friend. We hate old Giles' guts. If we don't do what he says he starves us, he beats us and he keeps us outside in the cold all night.

Gazza: Yeah, we're animals through and through. We'll help you mate. Just get these fish nets off of us.

Pinkie: Is that safe?

Sheep pigs: Dangerous, dangerous.....

Frederick: For the last time you lot, shut up!

Cedric: They seem pretty trustworthy to me. Take the nets off, slowly.

Gazza: Whoa that's better lads.

Bazza: See, our bark is quite definitely worse than our bite.

Gazza: Unless we see something worth biting! (playfully aims a bite at the Sheep pigs, who retreat, fast)

Bazza: Come back. He's only joking. (the Sheep pigs reluctantly creep back). Tell you what. Let's lighten up a bit. We need to get to know each other.

Gazza: Yeah, and when bulldogs want to get to know each other, there's nothing better than a getting to know you better bulldog stomp.

Frederick: A bulldog stomp? Goodness me, what will we be seeing next?

Bazza: Listen, if you ain't had a good stomp, you ain't lived. (Aside to MD) Oy, maestro, give us a bit of stomp music.

MD: Stomp music???

Gazza: Oh my good gawd, call yourself a musician and you don't know how to stomp. They don't teach these youngsters nothing these days. Give us something with a rhythm like this.

MD: How about this?

Bazza: Warm it up a bit mate. Alright. Man now you're talking rhythm.

Bazza and Gazza: Leeeeet's stomp!

Song: Bulldog Stomp (an old fashioned country hoe-down, sung by Bazza, Gazza, and Chorus, combined with a cockney knees-up, Chas and Dave style)

Scene Five

Pinkie, Blackie, Helter and Skelter

Blackie: What a beautiful day for just lying around and chewing the cud.

Helter: Chewing the cud? What do you mean?

Pinkie: Chewing the cud is what cows do.

Skelter: Chewing the cud! Sounds disgusting.

Blackie: Each to his own. I thought this new age on which we are all supposed to embark was meant to encourage freedom of thought. And I think I'd like to chew the cud.

Pinkie: So there!

Helter: Anyway. He's....

Pinkie: She's....

Helter: (Corrects himself, looking at Blackie) She's right. It is a beautiful day. A beautiful day for lying around doing nothing.

Skelter: And we pot bellies like lying around doing nothing.

Blackie: Well unfortunately you can't. There's a meeting of all the pigs, and other animals like Pinkie and me, in the big field.

Helter: We're not going.

Skelter: We've got other things to do.

Helter: Like chewing the cud.

Skelter: And sleeping.

Pinkie: But you've got to come

Blackie: It's about the revolution.

Helter: We don't want a revolution.

Skelter: We've got it easy. Old Giles' wife spoils us rotten. We don't want anything to change. We potbellies are pet pigs, not farm pigs like you!

Helter: Yeh, look, we're not opposed to you lot, but we can't be bothered with all this plotting and planning. Life's too short.

Blackie: Well we think you should join us. You are animals when all's said and done. Come on, let's get a move on. We'll be late.

Skelter: Maybe some day, but not today.

Helter: Yes, good-bye, enjoy your meeting. I'm sure you'll make lots of resolutions about your revolutions. (giggles)

(Exit Blackie, Pinkie)

Helter: Don't you ever worry about all this?

Skelter: No, it'll never come to anything. You know that. It's all just talk.

Helter: But I worry about it. I worry that beautiful, peaceful days like today will disappear. I can smell the wind of change.

Skelter: You can smell the wind that comes from the shed. It needs clearing out. Phew! Badly!

Helter: It's just that our world's so quiet and settled. On a day like today I just wish that we could just lie here forever.

Song: Don't let them change my world *(a peaceful ballad sung by Helter and Skelter)

Scene Six

Giles' farmhouse. A normal farmhouse, but there is a large pig's head on the wall, like a big game trophy.

(Enter Cedric and Frederick, Bazza and Gazza.)

Bazza: See, this is where it all happens, fellers. Told you the old woman was away. And when she's away he goes out every night.

Gazza: Yeh, sometimes he takes us. Goes to that place up the road.

Bazza: Yeh, lots of humans drinking lots of that beer stuff.

Gazza: Here, Freddie, what do you reckon to these books then?

Frederick: This stuff is far too advanced for old Giles, but very useful to me. I'll take the lot. Don't you think he'll miss them?

Bazza: Well, if we take four at a time, say, and swap 'em round every few days, or as soon as you've finished with one lot, well, he probably won't suspect a thing.

Gazza: So you reckon to understand all this humanspeak, Fred?

Cedric: Old Fred, as you lot would call him, can understand anything. What's more, he can even make the Sheep pigs understand it.

Bazza: Yep. He's turning into a regular genius.

Gazza: To get anything out of them Sheep pigs he'd have to be a genius.

Frederick: Oh really, you chaps. It's not my intelligence that's in question. It's the fact that Giles and the rest of his human friends are for the most part quite limited. To tell the truth, most seem rather stupid, and they need saving from themselves. Indeed, from what I have read, half of the human population are treated worse than we are, while the other half, rather callously it seems to me, don't care a jot. And they have the nerve to call us dumb animals. Most human knowledge I find is, really, my dear Gazza, quite elementary.

Bazza: Hear that Gaz, elementary.

Gazza: Elementary my son. (Mimics Frederick) It really is, my dear Bazza, quite elementary.

Song: Elementary, my son (a rousing cockney song sung by Bazza, Gazza and Frederick)

At the end of song the voice of Giles is heard outside the door, singing drunkenly.

Bazza: Come on you lot, it's Giles, let's make tracks.

(The animals make for the door.)

Gazza: Oy, Freddie, don't forget your books mate!

Frederick: Oh my goodness yes!

(Frederick dashes back to get his books, but as he does so Giles enters. Frederick hides under the kitchen table.)

Giles: What a night! I should encourage the wife to have a few more weekends away. For her health you know. And I've still got plenty of money left from them scientists from that hormone stuff I fed to't pigs. Tell you what. I saved even more money; I fed it to me dogs as well. They'll eat anything, those two. (To a member of the audience) What are you staring at? Never seen a farmer before. Bet you're one of them rich southerners with their nice country cottages, holiday homes – you'll be the ruin o 'the countryside you know. Never trust a southerner, that's what.... Hang on. What's that smell? I smell pig.

Voice of Frederick: (seeming to come from the pig's head) You smell a good deal worse than a pig, you stinker.

Giles: You what! (Turns round, all he sees is the pig's head) I could have sworn I heard a voice. It were a posh voice. (to audience) Did you hear out?

Voice of Frederick: Of course they did. They're not deaf, or dumb, like you.

Giles: (spinning round again) Now that's .....(again sees only the pig's head) enough! I just wonder what old Ned's putting in his beer these days. It's giving me them rejuicinations.

Voice of Frederick: I think you mean hallucinations

Giles: Now that's enough. Quite enough. I'm off to bed. This stuff's going to give me nightmares I'm sure.

Voice of Frederick: Sweet dreams old chap, good night.

Giles: Good.....aah! (stomps off to bed as he realizes what he's saying)

Frederick: (coming out from under the table, addressing the audience) Ventriloquism, another skill not too hard to master. Good night everybody, I'm off for a jolly good read. (Exit Frederick)

Scene Seven

Cedric, the Sheep pigs

Cedric: Now listen you sheep pigs, I've been forced to detain you after the other pigs have gone for a hard earned rest, because you are not learning your humanspeak lessons. And you are beginning to get me very angry.

Sheep pigs: Angry, angry, angry!

Cedric: Yes and you've got to stop this irritating habit of always repeating the last couple of words of everything I say.

Sheep pigs: I say, I say, I say.

Cedric: See, there you go again, its got to stop.

Sheep pigs: Got to....

Cedric: Shut up! Look this is no good. Goodness knows how Frederick can ever teach you anything. He must be a genius.

Sheep pigs: (as Frederick enters) Genius, genius, genius.

Frederick: (to Sheep pigs) Thank-you. Having trouble, Cedric old chap?

Cedric: That's the understatement of the year. It's this lot. I try to teach them, but they've got no concentration span at all. It's so irritating.

Sheep pigs: Irrigating, irrigating, irrigating.

Cedric: See.

Frederick: Cedric old chum, you have to use a bit of imagination. A bit of flexibility. Make them smile. Look, I'll show you what I did the other day to teach them the humanspeak alphabet and their numbers. Now come on, you Sheep pigs, listen.

Sheep pigs: Listen, listen, listen!

Song; Animals good, humans are bad (a madcap song sung by Frederick, Cedric and the Sheep pigs, and involving much silliness with the Sheep pigs)

Scene Eight

All the animals

Blackie: So what's it all about, Cedric, when is this bright revolutionary dawn about to break?

Cedric: We have assembled all you animals to tell you of our final plans.

Pinkie: So when do we attack Giles? Tomorrow? Next week? Soon?

Frederick: Pinkie not for a while yet, be patient.

Blackie: It's all right for you saying be patient, but we want some home comforts. It's cold enough these nights to freeze off your udders.

Bazza: Yeh, we want some o' that central eating.

Frederick: Heating, Bazza, heating. For goodness sake sound your h's.

Gazza: I say, what would you like to heat tonight, Bazza my hold friend?

Frederick: Look, we're getting sidetracked. It's plain to see that we could take the farm tomorrow if we wanted.

All the animals: Yes!

Cedric: But if we did, then who's to say that a whole load of humans wouldn't come back the next day and take it back?

Skelter: Then we'd be in big trouble.

Helter: We'd end up as bacon sandwiches. Let's forget about the revolution, please.

Frederick: No, we won't forget about the revolution. But when it comes, we must be prepared, and you must wait. It's not easy. You must have patience. When we were simple animals we didn't worry about the consequences of our actions. Now, when we act, we must work to a plan.

Cedric: Precisely. But don't you lot worry, the revolution will come, and when it does it will be worth it. One day soon, we'll find our rainbow. But for now, you must just have faith.

Frederick: The time has got to be right.

Blackie: The time is right for me to go to my cold bed. I've had enough of all this talk about rainbows. A very good night to you all.

Pinkie: Yes it's all a bit airy-fairy to me too. I'll join you.

(The animals disperse, deflated. Exit all except Frederick and Cedric).

Frederick: Cedric, what's the matter old chap?

Cedric: It's nothing Freddie, just leave it.

Frederick: Don't let them get you down. You know we must have patience. It's just one of those nights. We'll get there in the end.

Cedric: It's just that some of the pigs seem so ungrateful. I suppose in the end you're right.

Frederick: We can but try Cedric.

Cedric: We can indeed. You know, sometimes they expect too much too soon. And yet we're so near but at the same time so far away from making our first major breakthrough. And I just worry. We need to keep their spirits up. We're so near to the rainbow, but as far away as ever from being able to touch it.

Song: So near and yet so far (a ballad sung by Cedric. Frederick shares the last line to close the act.)

End of Act One

Act Two

Scene One

(Blackie and Pinkie are in the middle of the audience. This provides opportunity for much rehearsed ad-libbing)

Blackie: Right Pinkie, I think it's about time we livened up this miserable bunch out here.

Pinkie: Yes, we've had a song from those wretched Sheep pigs, "Animals good...." (mimics the sheep) (and to a member of the audience) Did you enjoy that? I'm sorry but for me it was a load of....."

Blackie: Okay Pinkie, I think we know what you mean. We need a song with a touch of class about it.

Pinkie: A song with a touch of originality. A touch of subtlety.

Blackie: On a subject close to all of our hearts.

Pinkie: A subject that will reach the depths of our souls.

Blackie: Cows, Pinkie!

Pinkie: Cows, Blackie!

Blackie: These people need to be educated into the joys of cowhood.

Pinkie: Let's find a couple of examples, (searches in the audience). This one here definitely needs a bit of exercise.

Blackie: And this one. Right, up you get. What you need sir is a quick session of cowrobics.

Pinkie: Maestro, give us some cowrobic rhythm!

(Pinkie and Blackie pull up a couple of members of the audience as the music starts, a marching rhythm)

Blackie: Now you sir, and you, madam must, for the duration of this song, consider yourselves cows.

Pinkie: And we will instruct you in the art, the noble art of being .....a cow.

Pinkie: But to consider yourself a cow, you must be aware of certain important realities.

Song: Consider yourself a cow (a military march, Sousa style, sung by Blackie and Pinkie.)

Scene Two

The farmyard. Helter and Skelter. The Sheep pigs are hiding, eavesdropping on the conversation. The Sheep pigs in this scene, like all the characters except Helter and Skelter, are sinister and threatening, and they speak their words mechanically, like Daleks.

Helter: I'm scared, Skelter, I'm really scared.

Skelter: I know, it's not looking good is it? These bigger pigs are getting so clever.

Helter: Yes, they're clever alright, but they're so dangerous as well.

Skelter: And such brains, Helter. Imagine a wolf with brains. That's what they're getting like. They've become like wild animals. And it seems that this intelligence disease has not only made them clever. It's made them more aggressive and nasty.

Helter: And it's not just on this farm. They reckon that there's animals everywhere who've been infected with the intelligence disease. Blackie said they're threatening revenge on all humans.

Skelter: Yes I heard the soldier pigs chanting their slogan yesterday: Every human must die: Not a man left alive!

Helter: I know. And Frederick said that on this farm they're going to start by killing poor old Mr Giles and his family. They're going to make what they call a public sacrifice.

Skelter: And he's such a kind man, a good man.

Helter: I think we should tell him.

Skelter: But the animals would be furious, they'd tear us to bits.

Helter: But we can't leave Mr Giles to be killed. They won't have to know that we told him.

Skelter: Look, let's go now. We'll tell him, so he and his family can escape quickly. At least it'll give them some sort of chance. His children are really nice. I wouldn't like to think of what those two evil bulldogs would do to them.

Helter: Okay, come on, we'd better move fast. If we're quick, no one will notice we're gone. Perhaps we can run away with Mr Giles.

Skelter: But where would we run to? I don't think there's anywhere safe for the humans, and if we're caught with them, well....

Helter: I know. But at least we can try. I wouldn't like Mr Giles to think that we didn't make the effort to save him. Everyone knows he's an animal lover.

Skelter: Okay, come on, let's go now before we change our minds.

(The Pig sheep come out from their hiding places and surround Helter and Skelter)

Sheep: Baa, traitors, baa traitors, baa baa baa baaadddd!

(Enter Frederick, Blackie, Pinkie)

Frederick: What's been going on here?

Sheep pigs: Baa traitors, Baaddd traitors, tell Giles, tell Giles, nassssty traitors, nassssty traitors, baa baa baadddd.

Frederick: Is this true?

Skelter: Yes, but....

Frederick: I always suspected these two. They're not true animals. There's something different about them.

Helter: But.....

Pinkie: Have you not been told again and again? Anyone who does not work with us is against us, and must be eliminated. Just like all the humans.

Sheep pigs: Every human must die, not a man left alive, every human must die..

(Frederick silences them with a dictatorial wave of the arm)

Blackie: Difference is not allowed. You will corrupt others with your difference. You are a danger to the cause. Your opinions will not be tolerated. You must be exterminated.

Sheep pigs: Exterminate them, exterminate them, exterminate them.

Skelter: But you used to be our friends. You can't....

Frederick: Your thoughts and actions are clearly not pure animal in their origins. You are imperfect. You must be sacrificed for the good of the cause. You must be destroyed.

Sheep pigs: Exterminate them, exterminate them, exterminate them. Who is different must die, only perfect survive (twice)

Frederick: You must be thrown to the dogs!

Blackie and Pinkie: (in unison) Fetch the dogs, now! (exit two Sheep pigs)

Sheep pigs:(into Helter and Skelter's faces) Dogs, dogs, nasty dogs, greedy dogs, nasssty, nasssty. Who is different must die, only perfect survive (twice)

(re-enter the two Sheep pigs, with Bazza and Gazza)

Bazza: (also sounding like a dalek) Killer One and Killer Two at your service sir!

Frederick: Killer One and Killer Two take these two and have yourself a nice bit of lunch.

Bazza and Gazza: We obey!

Helter, Skelter: No! No!

Sheep pigs: Exterminate them, exterminate them!

(the bulldogs seize Helter and Skelter, enter Cedric)

Cedric: What's going on? This wasn't what the revolution was about. What are you doing? What are you doing? (Tries to stop the bulldogs)

Frederick: Look, I've told you before. I had enough of your lily-livered, mealy-mouthed philosophy, Cedric. Killer One, Killer Two, leave those two. Take him, there's a bit more meat on his bones, eat the little ones for dessert!

Bazza and Gazza: We obey!

(The dogs start to attack Cedric.)

Cedric: No! No!

(Lights out)

When the lights come on, Cedric is awakening from a dream. The other animals surround him to see if he's alright.

Cedric: Helter, Skelter, you're alright?

Skelter: Of course we are.

Helter: Never better.

Cedric: And Bazza and Gazza, you're back to normal?

Gazza: Normal as talking dogs ever are, Ced!

Cedric: It was a nightmare, a terrible nightmare. And yet it seemed so real, as if reality were a dream and the nightmare reality. But Frederick, we must be careful. This was the warning of the dream. We are all equals, we must tolerate difference, and our revolution must be fair and just.

Frederick: But Cedric, this is what we've preached. That's what our new brains have taught us over these last weeks.

Cedric: But the dream. We must always stay true to our principles. We must not forget. We must treat man and animal alike and justly. We must never lose sight of our rainbow.

Skelter: Don't worry Cedric, we get the message. Your rainbow's safe with us.

Helter: Yes, we're all behind you. Even Skelter and I understand that you're right. So come on Cedric, cheer up.

Pinkie: And we're not fed up of hearing about your rainbow. We were silly when we started talking like that.

Skelter: Yes, tell us about this better world. Tell us more about some of the things that will happen after we get rid of Giles. Are you really going to build this big super windmill thing you told us about?

Cedric: Helter, we'll build a windmill as high as the sky, and that's just the start. Mark my words, we're going to change this world and we're going to change it fast. We're going to teach mankind a few lessons before it all gets too late for anyone on this planet of ours.

Song: We'll build a windmill (sung by Cedric, Helter, Skelter and the whole cast)

Scene Three

Cedric, Bazza, Gazza, Helter, Skelter, Blackie, Pinkie

(The scene becomes merrier as it progresses and the song is after the style of a Bavarian drinking song)

Cedric: Okay, and remember, we must all drink politely in the correct human fashion, as a gesture to Mr Trustworthy.

Pinkie: I say, do we really have to drink this alcohol stuff?

Cedric: I'm told this is the way the humans conduct their business.

Bazza: Well it don't bother me mate. Let's have a taste of the old gold liquid then. Ugh!! (coughs violently). It's quite nice, (drinks the whole glassful). Mm, I'll have some more of that.

(the rest help themselves and clearly enjoy it. Enter Frederick and Mr Trustworthy)

Frederick: Mr Trustworthy, may I introduce to you my friends Cedric, Pinkie, Blackie, Bazza and Gazza, and, last but not least, Helter and Skelter.

Mr Trustworthy: Gentlemen, may I bid you a good afternoon. Your friend Frederick has told me so much about you and your little venture, and I am impressed, most impressed. You are beginning to progress further than even the most intelligent of men could have done in such a short time. When Frederick, a talking pig indeed, first came to me, I have to say it was a shock, but I, like other humans will in the future, fast adapted to a reality that will shape our existence, that animals are becoming as man.

Cedric: Take a seat., Mr Trustworthy, would you like a glass of beer?

Mr Trustworthy: Oh, far too early in the day for me (holds out his glass). Thanks very much (drinks it in one and holds it out for another. His glass is replenished at regular intervals). In any case, it's so good to see someone making merry again in the old farm. It used to belong to a good friend of mine, you know. Many's the good night I've had here. That's until that old misery Giles acquired it, under very suspicious circumstances.

Blackie: So you don't like Giles, then?

Mr Trustworthy: My dear fellow, nobody in the village likes Giles. Not all human beings are like him, you know, but then not all animals are as friendly as you either.

Cedric: But to get down to business Mr Trustworthy, do you think our plans can work? Will our overall scheme be accepted by mankind?

Mr Trustworthy: Your scheme is brilliantly conceived, and mankind may ultimately be forced to accept it. It will be for his own good. But you must take it a piece at a time, and, you must rely on my advice, at least in the early stages. And first you must rid yourself of this evil fellow Giles. Once that is done you can look to the future with optimism.

Frederick: And Mr Trustworthy has consented to be our permanent adviser.

Mr Trustworthy: My dear chap, it shall be my main task in life. Since I retired from business, I have in fact found life rather dull, and this is exactly the sort of challenge I should relish. Young Frederick and I could meet regularly to discuss your progress.

Pinkie: Over a glass or two of beer?

Mr Trustworthy: Indeed so.

Cedric: So, Mr Trustworthy, in your view, animals and humans are not quite so far away from being reconciled as some humans may think?

Mr Trustworthy: Certainly not. Judging from our recent discussions, you certainly have much that it would profit humanity to learn. It would do mankind good to rid themselves of what I would term their superiority complex.

Song: Animal and man can be as one (A Bavarian drinking song with lyrics after the style of Gilbert and Sullivan sung by Mr Trustworthy).

Cerebrus: Things are starting to develop rather quickly, are they not? So let's get on with the tale without further ado. I can't wait to see what happens next. I have a feeling we're about to see some action.

Scene Four

Cedric and Frederic are in their sty, reading. Enter, running, Bazza and Gazza

Bazza: Quick lads, find us somewhere to hide! Give us some of that there straw.

Gazza: Yeh, I'll have some of that an' all.

Frederick: Hang on you fellows, can't a chap have a bit of peace to do some quiet reading any more, without.....

Bazza: Shut up Fred, it's Giles, he's coming after us with his stick. He's not half on the warpath.

Gazza: Yeh, he caught us in his front room nicking his books.

Bazza: Yeh, he caught me with me teeth right in the middle of one of them, and he wants to know what's going on.

Gazza: And he's going to give someone a right hammering.

Frederick: Well we think its time someone gave him a "right hammering".

Bazza: What?

Gazza: You mean?

Cedric: He means, Gazza, that our time has come.

Frederick: Look, there he is. Goodness me look at the steam coming out of his ears! He looks like a locomotive!

Cedric: Okay, everybody relax. Just act like ordinary animals. We'll give him a real shock.

Enter Giles.

Giles: Now I'm sure I saw them damn dogs dashing in here. I may not run so fast any more, but I've got a good eye and no animal ever put one over on me. Eating me books for goodness sake. I'll give em what for. Now where the devil are they?

Cedric: I haven't seen any dogs around here.

Giles: Who the hell was that?

Frederick: Positively nothing of the canine species around here.

Giles: (looks all around, especially in the sty) Listen if that Ned's been selling that cheap beer again! I must be going mad, voices coming from a pigsty. There'll be talking pigs next. I'd better see a doctor.

Frederick: I wouldn't bother seeing a doctor if I were you, you ignorant, smelly oaf.

Giles: (runs to the sty) Now that definitely came from this sty.

Cedric: (stands up and leans on the sty wall) Quite right, but as Frederick said, you don't really need to see a doctor.

Giles: What the....

Frederick: No, in any case, any dementia you suffer from is, I'm afraid, quite incurable.

Giles: But this is....

Cedric: Just a small sign of what is to come, Giles old chap. Here let me pinch you, you're not dreaming, you know.

Giles: Listen, I may not be dreaming, but I'll be damned if I let pigs start talking and acting big on my farm. It's not going to happen. You two'll be in the slaughterhouse next week along with the rest of your friends on this farm. Now where's them damn dogs?

Bazza: Them damn dogs is here mate.

Gazza: (approaches Giles threateningly) And you, you stupid old bully are no way taking any of our mates to the slaughterhouse.

Bazza: Yeah, if anyone's going to be slaughtered, it's you (all the animals approach Giles, threateningly).

Giles: (retreats as he speaks, preferably into the auditorium) Right, that's it. Talking pigs, talking dogs, the whole world's going mad. I'm going back to me farmhouse and then I'm going into town. But I'm telling you lot I'll be back.

Bazza and Gazza: Yeh?

Giles: Ay and when I do come back I'll sort this little business out once and for all. This farm will be run the way it's always been run. Mark my words, I'll be back, I'll be back. (during this speech the animals manhandle him roughly).

Bazza: (Shouts to backstage): Oy, you lot, come over here, quick!

Gazza: Come on get a shift on!

(All pigs come on stage)

Bazza: All right you lot, listen!

Gazza: Number one, your time has come!

Pigs: Hurray!

Bazza: Number two, old Giles has gone!

Pigs: Hurray!

Bazza and Gazza: Number three, and Revolution One is oooooon, theeeeeee, waaaaaay!

Song: Revolution One (a loud, rip-roaring rock 'n' roll song with a climactic finish, sung by all the animals)

Scene Five

Frederick, Cedric, Mr Trustworthy

Giles's farmhouse. It is dark, lanterns light the room, and, in contrast to the previous scene, the mood is very subdued.

Frederick: Thank you for seeing us so quickly, Mr Trustworthy, and sorry to have to meet you in such poor circumstances. Old Giles seems to have done his best to sabotage as much as he could when he left. We have, for example, no electricity.

Mr Trustworthy: Oh, don't worry about that, you're talking to a fellow who served in the war you know, up to my neck in muck and bullets and all that. Compared to that the present situation is palatial, positively palatial.

Cedric: And you feel that we have, in truth, every chance of success?

Mr Trustworthy: Every chance. With regards to the farm, if you can force him to sign two documents, which I have in my possession, the whole deal will be completed forthwith. With regards to the surrounding area, I have negotiated a meeting for you with some of the most influential people. They are willing to hear your case, once you are in possession of the farm.

Frederick: And how long do you think it will be before Giles comes back?

Mr Trustworthy: Not long. I hear he's gone into town to find some people to help him do his dirty work. You pigs had better be prepared for a rough battle with no holds barred.

Cedric: Don't worry, we'll be ready. We've been waiting for this for a long time.

Mr Trustworthy: Look, you fellows, I must be off. My wife will once more be wondering where I have disappeared to. But I'll keep my ears to the ground in the village, and if I see Giles is preparing to make his move, I'll nip up here post haste and give you an early warning.

Cedric: That would be brilliant, but, Mr Trustworthy, you've done far too much to help us already.

Mr Trustworthy: Oh it's of no account, no account whatsoever. In any case, I'd like to be in at the kill, er..., so to speak, and anyway you'll need me to witness the signatures after your battle is won.

Frederick: Well in all events, let us thank you now for all the help that you have given us. We will not let you down.

Mr Trustworthy: I'm sure you will not. Well it's good night you fellows, and good luck, all the best of good luck.

(Exit Trustworthy)

Cedric: A good friend.

Frederick: A good friend indeed. Perhaps the first of many we may make among the human population. But Cedric, this is not the demeanour of a pig who will lead us to boldly go where no pig has ever ventured before.

Cedric: That's just it, Frederick, the final frontier beckons. And I just wonder if we can really make it. It's one great step for pigkind, you know.

Frederick: Now where have I heard that before? Listen Cedric, we've brought these animals so far and we can take them all the way.

Cedric: But all the way to what? I sometimes have this nightmare that we're going to change the whole world, but that we're somehow going to change it for the worse.

Frederick: From all my reading, I can assure you that for animals like us, and our sons and daughters, you can hardly change anything for the worse. To alter our pigs' saying slightly, "When change will come it can only be for the better"

Cedric: Perhaps you're right Frederick, I hope you're right, but sometimes I wonder how much of this is all just a dream, all perhaps a figment of my own rather fertile imagination. Cedric's dream, the dream of a world beyond the rainbow, how much of it will, I wonder, eventually come true?

Song: Sometimes I wonder (a thoughtful ballad sung by Cedric)

Scene Six

All the pigs, Bazza and Gazza

Cedric: So, as I've instructed, every one of you must play your part, and support everything we do. Don't move until you are told to do so, but when you do, especially you sheep pigs, move fast. If the men have guns it's your job to dash right at them and cause confusion before they get the chance to use them.

Frederick: Yes, remember you Sheep pigs, run for the gun, run for the gun.

Sheep pigs: Run for the gun, run for the gun, run for the....

Cedric: Alright, alright, we get the message. I thought you'd cured them of that habit, Frederick?

Frederick: Well they're getting better.

Sheep pigs: Better, better

Frederick: I'll keep trying!

Cedric: And Bazza and Gazza, you're to make sure you take care of any dogs they may bring.

Bazza: Town dogs, Ced, no problems.

Gazza: City dogs, mate, we can take em four to one. We'll have em for dinner.

Frederick: And especially you two, remember, we are not like some human beings, we do not fight to kill. Our mission ultimately is peaceful.

Cedric: Yes, we perform our job with as little force as possible. We must be examples; we must set precedents for the future of animalkind.

Frederick: Is everyone prepared?

All: Yes!

Cedric: Okay then, all we've got to do is wait.

(Enter Trustworthy, out of breath and limping)

Mr Trustworthy: Just got here in time, someone set a trap. Explosives! Luckily, I was thrown clear, Giles is on his way, he's got men, guns, dogs and possibly other weapons. He's coming from over there, ....almost here ..... (faints).

Cedric: Okay everybody, take your positions. Fetch something to revive Mr Trustworthy!

(Enter Giles, with his ferocious looking henchmen, and, optionally, city dogs. In the background Mr Trustworthy revives himself by drinking a pint of beer in one go)

Giles: All right you dogs, save us some trouble, go and sort it out. Attack.

(The city dogs advance, looking ferocious, but Bazza and Gazza make short work of them).

Giles: Alright you lot, you've had your bit of fun, but that's just the horses dervreys, now we'll have the main course. And guess what's on the menu. Bacon butties mmm., pork chops.... And nice juicy sausages mmm! It takes just a little bit of human brain to beat all the brawn I can see over there. Right lads take aim.

Cedric: Sheep pigs advance!

Giles: Take careful aim, now.

Cedric: Sheep pigs advance!

Giles: Don't worry lads, these animals are cowards. It's not in their nature to challenge their rightful masters. As I said a long time ago, dumb animals. Now, on a count of three. One...

Cedric: Sheep pigs advance! (leads the charge himself). Run for the gun, run for the gun!

(Cedric and the Sheep pigs cause total confusion in the human ranks, but Cedric is wounded in the charge. In the heat of the battle Giles escapes, but is pursued, possibly through the auditorium, by Bazza and Gazza, who finally catch him and drag him up on stage. Cedric is helped to his feet and watches on with a bandaged head)

Frederick: Mr Giles, we have you to ourselves at last, and we have one or two little documents that we would like you to sign.

Giles: No chance.

Bazza: Can I have him? The old Hampsteads could do with a bit more exercise.

Cedric: I think so, as long as Gazza doesn't mind.

Gazza: Be my guest mate, be my guest, there's plenty of meat on this bone, I'll have my share later. I'll just enjoy sitting here listening to him squeal.

Frederick: Just a couple of mouthfuls Bazza, we'd all like a piece in due course.

Giles: You wouldn't.....

Cedric: Are you forgetting, Mr Giles, that we are dumb, uncivilised animals? We are not at all like you cultured human beings. When we get a taste for blood, well...

Giles: But...

Mr Trustworthy: I really feel, Mr Giles, that it would be better if you signed.

Giles: You traitor!

Mr Trustworthy: Not at all Mr Giles, not at all. It is you who are the traitor to the good name of humankind. These animals are more civilised, more cultured and more intelligent than you could ever hope to be. If all men were like you then our species would be soon extinct. Even as it is, it is constantly endangered by the likes of you. But in brief, I would indeed advise you to sign.

Giles: Not on your...

Bazza: It was me for first bite lads, wasn't it? Mm, smells tasty! Grr!

Giles: Alright, alright, (signs) but I'll be back with me own lawyers as fast as I can get this stupid business sorted out. I'm getting out of here, but don't think you've seen the last of me. (exit Giles)

Cedric: Do you think he'll be back?

Mr Trustworthy: Even if he is, you've little to worry about. He only acquired the farm in the first place by some very devious dealings. No lawyer I know would take on Giles' case. The man's obviously a cheat and a bully. And quite frankly, he hasn't a leg to stand on.

Frederick: So we've made it.

Mr Trustworthy: My friends, your first and most important battle is over. The rest of the war will not be easy, but can just as well be won.

Blackie: Did you hear that everybody? The battle is over, the farm is ours, and Giles is gone for good and forever.

Pinkie: Yes, three cheers for Cedric and Frederick. (leads all in three cheers)

Song: Animals Rule (an anthem sung by all the animals)

Scene Seven

All the animals and Mr Trustworthy. The atmosphere is solemn. Behind Frederick's speech, the strains of "Where is the rainbow?" can be heard.

Frederick: My friends, we are gathered here to mourn, but also celebrate, the death of Cedric, friend to all, hero to all. As we all now know, his head wound, so bravely acquired, ultimately proved fatal. But for him, the Sheep pigs might not have charged, the battle might not have been won, and Giles might still be our master. But Cedric will always live with us, with our children, and with our children's children. He will always be our conscience, our guide, in our bid to create a just world, a fair world, where animal and man, as our good friend Mr Trustworthy would say, can truly be as one. The situation in Cedric's nightmare must never come to pass, and we will work to fulfil his hopes and ambitions. Cedric cannot die, has not died in vain. He would wish us now only to be happy, with no downcast faces. For he was the symbol of the new revolution, the inspiration to whom we must look when times are not quite so glorious as they now appear. My friends, Revolution One is now over, let us look forward to our brave new world, but never forget the old one. And never, never lose sight of your rainbow.

Song: Reprise of “Where is the rainbow?” (Middle section, sung by the voice of Cedric off stage, and final verse, sung by all). As the music takes over, lights should lower and all the characters should bow their heads in mourning. As the song hits the first word of the final verse, i.e. “If there’s a rainbow, it’s in your heart...”, all characters raise their heads in triumph and the lights go up. On the final notes of the song, the rainbow should reappear, and the scene should end with all characters looking up at the rainbow.

Lights out, then lights on again for.....

Final Bows to a reprise of “Pigs”

The End
